Fire, Flood or Earthquake - No Worries for SunGard

When SunGard EBS decided to migrate to HP hardware across the company, its existing recovery site with rented equipment was no longer compatible.

In the event of a disaster at the Sydney CBD office, SunGard's crisis management plan is activated, which will enable the business to become operational within 24 hours from a remote location.

The Leading Solutions team designed, integrated and delivered a complete recovery site that can be depended on if a crisis occurs.

Organisation

- Major provider of administration services and software technology to organisations involved in superannuation.
- Subsidiary of SunGard Data Systems (listed on New York and London Stock Exchanges), which has offices in 20 countries and is the largest provider of software for specialist financial applications.

Challenge

- Replace a shared recovery site with a dedicated SunGard EBS facility based on Hewlett-Packard hardware.
- Complete the project in four weeks including management approval.

Solution

- To meet a space-saving need, LS designed the site based on eight HP LPR Netservers using Cisco switches.
- Full installation of all hardware at LS prior to shipment within the allotted time frame.
- LS delivered a cost effective solution based on sound technical knowledge.

Result

- A dedicated remote disaster recovery site that will allow SunGard to restore operations within 24 hours in the event of a disaster to the main computer system.
- Clients are assured of continuity of service and 100% protection of data.

"Our clients are the most important part of our operation so we need to ensure that their business will not be disrupted if a disaster strikes. With Leading Solutions' help, we now know that we can recover our services immediately and get up and running within 24 hours."
